If you weren't able to get your hands on the first version of everybody's favorite Nike Flyknit Trainer Sale, you're in luck as Nike is set to release a second version of the Nike Flyknit Racer "Multicolor". The Nike Flyknit Racer "Multicolor" is set to come in a purple, blue, and green colorway on the woven upper along with black accents found in the Nike Swoosh, laces, lining, and part of the midsole. White hits appear in the back portion of the midsole to help offset the super colorful upper. If history proves anything, these Flyknit Racer's are bound to be sold out in a heartbeat, just like the first version did.

The NFL playoffs got underway last weekend and we received quite an exciting wild card round. Buy Nike Flyknit Trainer The Dallas Cowboys, Baltimore Ravens, Indianapolis Colts and Carolina Panthers all came out victorious and will move on to the next round. Waiting to play the Panthers this weekend is the defending champion Seattle Seahawks. Combining navy blue and bright green on the interwoven Flyknit upper, it's almost as if this colorway should have "Seahawks PE" at the end of it. Contrasting Swooshes on each side and a white midsole finish off the look on yet another great colorway of the Nike Flyknit Racer.

Like all other Shop Nike Flyknit Trainer, this one will also come in a Flyknit woven upper. Donning a Bright Crimson look, the Flyknit Racer comes plastered in a Bright Crimson attire, making it an ideal choice for your summer fit. This particular Nike Flyknit Racer opts to ditch the solid blocking usually seen on the alternating medial sides, and instead chooses to go with the an interwoven speckling, that I actually prefer. Complimented with more Crimson hits found on laces, tongue, lining and midsole, the upper aesthetics of the Flyknit Racer is complete.

Nike Flyknit Trainer Online is inarguably one of the most influential shoes in recent memory, as it paved the way for low-constructed lightweight knit running silhouettes. With OG colorways returning, the Trainer is receiving and uptick in consumer attention which gives the Swoosh an opportunity to introduce brand new iterations to the market. Next up, is this "Spiderman" color scheme that combines the suit colors of everyone's favorite teenage superhero to create a brand new aesthetic. Featuring blue in the front half and black in the back half, the Beaverton Brand ushers in Siren Red on its midfoot Swoosh as well as its midsole stripe.

On Tuesday, the Nike Flyknit Trainer for Men/Women released in an OG black and white color scheme and sold out in minutes across nearly every platform. Revitalizing original color schemes is a great way to increase the energy around a sneaker, as fans who weren't able to secure a pair will look elsewhere to pick up another colorway of that same silhouette. Nike is taking advantage of that notion and releasing a Cargo Khaki/Bright Citron iteration of the Flyknit Trainer that combines two mainstays of the popular runner to create a brand new design.
