Founded in 1949 in Kobe, Asics Sneakers Men Japan by Kihachiro Onitsuka, ASICS set out to make shoes through a health-focused lens. The name itself is an acronym of the Latin phrase “anima sana in corpore sano”, translating to “healthy mind in a healthy body”. The company made a technological leap at its outset and introduced a basketball sneaker in 1950, which would set itself apart from other shoe manufacturers who found difficulty in producing a quality basketball sneaker.
