Every year the start of June also marks the beginning of Pride month, a four week-long celebration of the LGBTQ+ community. Adidas Continental 80 Shoes Many sneaker brands acknowledge the festivities with special releases, and adidas is among their ranks, presenting a capsule collection each and every year. We've already seen a Pride-centric take on the Ultra Boost 2019, and now the Three Stripes has also revealed a new version of the Continental 80, complete with bold rainbow detailing. A lifestyle favorite from the adidas Originals line, the special Continental features a supple eggshell-colored leather upper, one that's somewhat reminiscent of the adidas Yeezy Powerphase.

To go along with "Semi Frozen Yellow," "Aero Blue," and "Clear Pink" colorways of the Adidas Continental 80 Outlet, the Three Stripes also debuted a premium snakeskin rendition of the runner. One pairs comes dressed in Chalk White/Carbon-Grey and the other in Core Black/Carbon-Grey. Both are constructed with faux snakeskin leather scented with suede on the mudguard. A Gum outsole completes the design.

adidas Originals is adding to their Yung series by bringing back a lesser-known model from their archive in original form with the Adidas Continental 80 Online. Originally released in the late 1980s, the Continental 80 shoe is a classic casual model, made from a soft premium leather with perforation vents on the toebox and sides, placed atop a double cupsole. Decoration comes in the form of a two-tone stripe running along the shoe's sides beneath an old school trefoil-branded window below the lace panel. This is then finished with a terry cloth lining, completing the shoe's pure retro feel.

The Adidas Continental 80 Sale, one of the lifestyle siblings of the Originals family recently featured in Pharrell's latest Hu capsule, is back for another release geared towards its more general audience. Shedding its cream-colored exteriors, the silhouette is now getting done up with a more classical approach by mimicking the look of the ever-popular white and green Stan Smith colorway.
