What does 1X handicap mean?

What is a 1X handicap? If you are still unclear about the 1X handicap or various basic handicap types nowadays, let's listen to the explanation from Wintips's expert below.

Currently, the 1X handicap is being offered by many bookmakers for certain football matches, especially when they perceive a significant difference in skill and strength between the two teams. Therefore, bookmakers provide a 1X handicap to create a balance between the two teams.

When participating in betting on the 1X handicap, players need to understand how to read this type of odds:

If you bet on the upper team -> If the upper team wins by a margin of 2 goals compared to the lower team, you win the full amount. However, if you bet on the lower team at this point, you will lose all your money.

If you bet on the upper team -> If the upper team wins by only 1 goal compared to the lower team, you are considered a refund. Even if you bet on the lower team in this case, the bookmaker will still refund your money.

If you bet on the upper team -> If the upper team loses or draws compared to the lower team, you lose your entire bet. In this situation, those who bet on the lower team win and receive the full amount.

Things to consider when betting on 1X handicap

When participating in betting on the 1X handicap, it is crucial to take note of the important factors highlighted by Wintips's expert. So, what are the key considerations when betting on the 1X handicap?

Bet on the upper team -> If the upper team is in a high position in the standings and is playing at their home ground.

Also, consider betting on the upper team -> If you assess that the upper team has a stronger attack compared to the lower team.

Continue to choose to bet on the upper team -> If the upper team, despite playing away, has a strong performance both offensively and defensively, while the home team performs weakly in both aspects.

Bet on the lower team -> If the home team is given a handicap and plays with high form, coupled with a strong defense.

If the lower team scores the first goal in the match, you should also consider betting on the lower team.
